

RAF Cottesmore

RAF Cottesmore, a mix and match camp, with air cadets and sea cadets, it was a bit weird to start with but after a few days we all felt like a happy, yet strange family. Because of the sea cadets we got the chance to do some sea cadet drill, which was a great laugh as the sea cadets liked the air cadet drill and the air cadets enjoyed doing the sea cadet drill. At the end of the week had a drill competition, where we had to incorporate air cadet and sea cadet drill, it was very funny, but in the end the best flight won, B flight!

The activities were fantastic with shooting, flying, high ropes, where I was almost left on top of the post as I was very scared to come down! But with some great encouragement from my team members I plucked up the courage to come down. Also there was an inter flight competition of rounders, soft ball, sir's rules we never found out with it was, but anyway B flight won, fair and square.

Section visit to the fire section was... wet very wet, and to top it all off we got to see a Hercules land.

We also went to the national space centre, swimming and we weren't allowed to shoot each other at shooting, so they took us to laser tag, where we could shoot each other for hours, it was great fun, but unfortunately A flight shot more of us and won.

On the whole the camp was excellent and I would recommend it to anyone. Thank you to all the staff and cadets for making it the best. Hope to see you all soon.
